

PETEY DINK—SOMEBODY'S BEING KIDDED A BIT IN TODAY'S STRIP, IT SEEMS.

SEASON PRODUCTIVE OF UNUSUAL RECORDS

ESTABLISHED RECORDS IN DIAMOND PERFORMANCES SMASHED THIS YEAR.

LATE SPORTING EVENTS

Trinity College is Expecting Much From George Brickley, Brother of Charles of Harvard Fame.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, July 24.—Baseball play in the major and minor leagues this season has been productive of a number of unusual performances, some of which have established records, some of which have surpassed those existing for some years. They include almost every department of the game and at the rate they are piling up, it is likely to be remembered as the year of odd features.

In the Pacific Coast league Jack Noss, first baseman of the Oakland team, batted safely in forty-nine consecutive games for a total of seventy hits, breaking Ty Cobb's record of one or more hits in forty straight games made in 1911. Previous to Cobb's advent the record was held by Hal Chase, who in 1907 batted safely in twenty-seven consecutive contests. The same year Cobb was hitting so consistently, Otis Clymer was establishing the minor league record of safe hitting in twenty-five straight games.

Other extraordinary features include twenty bases on balls by Pitcher Harry Harper, a game between Minneapolis and St. Paul of the American Association; the winning of two games in one day by Pitcher Melvin Burdette of the Chicago team; the Central association, who allowed fifteen hits and two runs in twenty-four innings against Marshalltown; the same team scoring ten runs in the same game; George Cuthbert's two safe hits on one pitched ball, which Empire Klem declared legal; the Brooklyn-Chicago game of July 10, and Fielder Babe Oldring's failure to take the field with the rest of his teammates until several balls were hit had been called upon the batter; due to an error in the score book with Joe Sugden, in a recent Athletic-Browns game at St. Louis.

Watch Brickley II.
Trinity College football followers are gleefully awaiting the coming of autumn and George Brickley, brother of the Charles Brickley, late of Harvard. What the latter did to Yale and Princeton eleven years ago, and what the Cambridge institution is getting out of him, Trinity alumni and undergraduates are hoping that George will give as disconcerting to the football teams of William and Keokuk in the same association; George Cuthbert's two safe hits on one pitched ball, which Empire Klem declared legal; the Brooklyn-Chicago game of July 10, and Fielder Babe Oldring's failure to take the field with the rest of his teammates until several balls were hit had been called upon the batter; due to an error in the score book with Joe Sugden, in a recent Athletic-Browns game at St. Louis.

He is reported to inherit the punting and drop kicking ability of his father, and even to be playing a last all-around game in the baseball. The new Trinity recruit has not played football for two years, having devoted most of his athletic attention to basketball and tennis. He is expected to be a valuable asset to the Philadelphia Athletics a season ago, but Connie Mack could not make a big league player of him and passed the youngster on to the Twin State league. It may develop that what George needed was coaching by a Yost rather than a Mack.

Cincinnati Empire Schools.
The public schools of Garry Hermannville are to provide a course of instruction in the art of umpling. Whether this is due to the plans of the school and John McGraw is not known, but both have said that the decisions rendered on baseball fields this year are the most even and sane. Billy Hart and Billy Carpenter will be professors in charge of classes and diplomas attesting eagle eye discernment may be expected.

Reports from Japan indicate that the coming visit of the University of Chicago baseball team is awaited with great interest by the Japanese fans. The Chicago squad will leave for the Orient next month and will play several games on the way to the Pacific coast in addition to some contests on the return trip. This will be the third visit of Japan by an American college team. Wisconsin have made the initial trip in 1909.

The Badgers played nine games during September and October of that year, winning five and losing four. Wisconsin met the Keio University team, the Japanese champions, and were defeated in three of the four contests. One game was an eleven-inning struggle and another went nine innings, which still stands as an intercollegiate record. Against Waseda University, Wisconsin did not win the series of two games to go. Two victories over independent teams completed Wisconsin's record.

In 1910 Chicago faced both Keio and Waseda in a series of six games for the championship of the Far East and won all six, although forced to go ten innings in two contests. Following this series the American collegians played four exhibition games at which teamism was charged, winning all four. On the way home the team stopped at Manila for four games of which three were won.

The following year Waseda made a tour of the United States, playing about fifty games against college and amateur club teams. Thirty were played against college lines of which Waseda won eight, lost twenty-one and tied one. Against the amateur club teams the Japanese broke even, winning ten and losing ten games. During this trip all the larger universities of the Pacific coast and middle west were won on the diamond.

Give Wray's Record.
Possessing the invariable strokes as taught by Messrs. Nickalls and Wray, the Harvard Alumni Bulletin has forestalled the same with a short resume of the records of Harvard crews under Coach Wray. The situation is summed up as follows:

"What the Harvard rowing authorities must now consider is the question whether the safety of rowing practiced in Cambridge has faults which put it at a disadvantage in comparison with the stroke that Nickalls has developed at Yale. Discussion on this point will doubtless be long and confusing. The record of the Harvard University crew in its races with Yale since Wray began to coach in Cambridge has some bearing on the problem. Wray has had charge of eleven crews, five of these have won decisive victories, three of them, and this year's eight was the first of the eleven to be beaten by more than 20 feet."

Passing of Thorpe.
The passing of Jim Thorpe, famous all-around athlete and winner of the Olympic Games, individual honors at Stockholm, as a baseball player, again demonstrates the fact that the league managers are not infallible judges of diamond material. John McGraw of an expensive contract, after the professional had been declared a professional, though Thorpe did not revolutionize baseball during his early days with the team, McGraw repeatedly declared that the Indian would eventually make something of Thorpe's inability to hit anything except twirlers took care that he did not get, proved too great a handicap for even this great athlete. Passed on to the Jersey City club of the International league, his weakness was so apparent to all pitchers that the ill-fated Indian was dropped from the class AA league as valueless.

The possibilities of baseball are evinced in various ways. Break plays are recorded in amateur and professional games that would be considered ridiculous in the professional ranks. In a recent game at a fanning can league a player scored a run without a base hit, pass or holding error. In the same game a wild pitch on which he reached second, a passed ball put him on third and another wild pitch sent him home.

A new Federal league recruit tells a story of four batters whom he struck out in a row while pitching for his college team, scored, which is unique in baseball annals. His catcher, who he told the tale, was a little fellow who could not hold his last ones, and as he had nothing but a first result was disastrous. The first four batters to face the amateur Rusie Beck, who performed in professional style last year, fell down early in the meet this year. Richards is speedy and will have to be considered a probable in the race for final honors.

RACQUET MEN MEET IN SECOND ROUND

Tournament Progresses Into Second Round With Both Lovejoys Still In Race—Carpenter and Eickman Show Class.

The Lovejoy brothers broke into the limelight yesterday when both eliminated their opponent in the first round of the Tennis club tournament at the M. A. courts. H. S. Lovejoy took outlasted Allen by 6 to 5, and in his match with Wheelock, 6 to 4 and 6 to 4. A. P. Lovejoy won his match by default against Flaherty. They are the only racquet artists who have as yet broken into the second round.

S. Smith took his match in the preliminaries with Jeffries by default, and M. Smith captured a hot battle from M. Smith by a 6 to 5 set, after each had taken one. The first one ended 6 to 2 for Wheelock, the second 9 to 7 for Smith. Carpenter took his preliminary match with Taylor by default and Jackman did the same from Volcan. Richards beat Yonce in a one-sided battle, taking two love sets. Eickman outlasted Allen, 6 to 1, and made the last a love set. The winner of the tournament H. S. Lovejoy took his preliminary match from Weirick, 7 to 5 and 6 to 1. The first round now stands between the winners of the Mabel McKelvey match and Kline for second round honors: S. Smith and the winner of the Matheson-Kopp preliminary; the winner of the Mabel McKelvey match and the winner of the Southern match; the winner of the Brewster-Hazen match and Carpenter; the winner of the O'Brien-Birmingham match and Jackman; and Richards and Eickman.

Although all who have broken into the first round are showing class, the honors seem to be hanging over the heads of Carpenter and Eickman. These two contestants have been picked by tennis authorities as two probable runner-ups in the semi-finals. Weirick, who performed in professional style last year, fell down early in the meet this year. Richards is speedy and will have to be considered a probable in the race for final honors.

PREPARING FOR BIG CHICAGO TOURNAMENT

Members of Janesville Gun Club Expect to Compete in American Handicap Tourney.

Janesville trap shooters are getting ready for the Grand American handicap tournament to be held in Chicago from August 16th to August 20th, and it is predicted at the present time that at least six trap shooters from the Janesville club will enter the event, expected to be the biggest ever held. Indications are that the entries will be made up of the most talented shooters well for the sport, since the amateur shots who will attend from all sections of the country will pay their own expenses.

Conditions for the shoot will be ideal. The affair will be held at Grant park, where shooters will have easy access to hotels. The traps will soar over water and the sky will form a background.

Members of thirty-six gun clubs of Chicago are bending efforts to make the shoot a big success. There is considerable speculation as to who may be the new champion. Comparatively unknowns captured top honors in 1913 and 1914. The 1914 winner was the village blacksmith of Hicksville, O.

With the large number of entries the competitors will be men from every walk of life, men willing to travel far and pay their own way to shoot in the big gun event.

SOX CLIMBING BACK TO FIRST PLACE BY BEATING YANKS AGAIN

Chicago, July 24.—Chicago made it three straight from New York when they won, 3 to 2, in a desperate ninth inning finish. John Collins' single to right, coupled with his daring base running, when he stole second, took third on a short, passed ball, and scored on Leibold's sacrifice fly, gave the locals the game. Chicago took a two run lead when Bourrier's single, sacrifice and Peich's double gave them one run in the second, and Murphy's walk, a sacrifice and a single by Eddie Collins netted another in the third.

Eddie Cicotte pitched a masterly game until the eighth. Only two hits had been made off him to that time. Sweeney's single and Hartzel's triple when he batted for Warhop put the visitors within striking distance, and a base on balls to Peckinpah, followed by a single, a sacrifice and a perfectly executed squeeze play gave them the tying run in the ninth. Cicotte struck out eleven.

Cubs Slip Again.

Boston, July 24.—Boston defeated Chicago 2 to 1 in an eleven inning game on Friday. Singles by Magee and Schmidt, a sacrifice by Schmidt, followed by Maranville's hit, put the winning run across during the final inning. Boston's first run was forced in by Vaughn. A wild throw to the plate by Smith allowed Chicago to score her single run.

REPERITION BY GERMANY OF ILLEGAL ACT ON SEAS

Reparation of the American lives lost, so far as reparation can be made for a needless destruction of human life by an illegal act.

The Government of the United States, while not indifferent to the friendly spirit in which it is made, can not accept the suggestion of the Imperial German Government that Imperial vessels be designated and agreed upon which shall be free on the seas now illegally prescribed. The very agreement would, by implication, subject other vessels to illegal attack and would be a curtailment and therefore an abandonment of the principles for which this government contends and which in times of calmer counsels every nation would concede as of course.

The Government of the United States and Imperial German Government are contending for the same great object, have long stood together in urging the very principles upon which the government of the United States now so solemnly invokes the practical cooperation of the Imperial German Government at this time when co-operation may accomplish most and this great common object be most strikingly and effectively achieved.

U. S. Ready as Mediator.

The Imperial German Government expresses its hearty desire that this object may be in some measure accomplished even before the present war ends. It can be. The Government of the United States not only feels obliged to insist upon it, by whomsoever violated or ignored, in the protection of its own citizens, but is also deeply interested in seeing it made practicable between the intelligent representatives of the two nations themselves, and holds itself ready at any time to act as the common friend who may be privileged to suggest a way.

Gunners in the U. S. Navy have established a fine record for marksmanship. This record was not made by hitting the bullseye once.

Records are made by scoring many hits in succession—by striking the target continuously.

The record of Diamond Squegee Tread Tires was not made by exceptional mileage secured from one tire out of a hundred or more.

It is a record that is based upon mileage economy and superior wearing qualities as shown in the grand average—and that is the only kind of a tire record worthy of consideration.

This record shows that more than 99% of all Diamond Tires used produce plus service.

DOCTORS THINK BOY INJURED YESTERDAY HAD SINGLE CHANCE

Attending Surgeons Give Quinton Bick the Chance of Recovery—Compound Skull Fracture.

Although still lying in a state of utter unconsciousness since he was knocked from his bicycle by an automobile at the Corn Exchange at 12:20 o'clock yesterday at noon, surgeons attending Quinton Bick say that the nine years old youth has a single chance to live, despite a compound fracture of the skull.

The little boy is still in a precarious condition and has one chance in a thousand of successfully pulling through. Dr. W. H. McGuire, who was near by when the accident occurred and who immediately rushed the youth to the hospital, said that the boy's chances of recovery were determined by the condition of the skull. The skull was fractured in two places, one of which was a compound fracture.

Pieces of the skull were driven into the brain. The fracture was directly in the skull from which the broken sections were removed about the size of a fifty cent piece. Following the removal of the crushed sections, the boy's skull was splinted with silver plates to relieve the pressure from pressure of irritation without.

Mrs. F. J. Bick, the mother, is prostrated with grief over the accident. She was hurried to the hospital at the time and also spent the entire night there.

Charles Zuercher, the Broadhead boy who drove the machine which knocked the boy from his bicycle, also feels intensely over the accident. He has done practically everything to relieve the mother's state of mind in her hospital visit yesterday. The youth is being kept in the hospital at the expense of the mother. Mrs. Bick is being kept in the hospital at the expense of the mother.

Additional witnesses to the accident discovered today are unanimously of the opinion that the accident was unavoidable. Zuercher was coming west on Milwaukee street at a moderate rate of speed and, following the rules of the road, attempted to pass a horse drawn vehicle ahead of him, on the left. Zuercher was driving down the street and as an automobile was drawn up against the curb, he attempted to get ahead of the rig. He succeeded in passing the rig, but the machine which was just abreast of the horse.

The wheels of the automobile did not pass over the youth's head. Had this been the case, the boy would have been almost instantaneous. The boy was catapulted through the air when the automobile struck the wheel. His head struck the steel rail of the car line and this resulted in the bad fracture of the skull.

A fast ball game promised. Tomorrow Beloit plays Janesville Cardinals at Beloit.

TWO MORE CARS OF OIL ORDERED BY THE COMMISSION

Two more cars of street oil were ordered by the city yesterday to be delivered at the earliest possible moment. Delay in delivery in the last two cars of oil prevented the city from receiving the last four cars. The arrival of the last four cars, about seventy-five thousand gallons of oil, has been used up to the present time.

Beloit plays Janesville Cardinals, tomorrow at Beloit.

SEWER CERTIFICATES BEING COLLECTED BY CITY CLERK

Baseball tomorrow at Beloit, Janesville Cardinals.

DECISION UPHOLDS GRAVEL COMPANIES' PROTESTS ON RATES

Janesville and Beloit Concerns Win Their Point in Case Decided by Inter-State Commerce Board.

Janesville, Beloit and other sand and gravel companies located in Wisconsin have won their contention in regard to freight rates on sand and gravel between Wisconsin points and Chicago, according to a decision of the interstate commerce commission, which orders the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroads to cancel the rates in question on or before Sept. 1, 1915.

Attorney C. E. Pierce represented the Janesville Sand and Gravel company in the proceedings. F. J. Sullivan for the Fisher Sand and Gravel company, and J. J. O'Laughlin for the Beloit Sand and Gravel company. J. J. O'Laughlin for the Waukesha Lime and Stone company and R. H. Atwood for the Atwood-Sand company, all of which concerns entered protest to an increase in freight rates which were held to be discriminatory.

The railroads proposed an increase from 1 1/2 cents to 2 1/2 cents per hundred pounds on sand and gravel from Janesville and Beloit to Chicago, an increase of 2 1/2 cents per 100 pounds from the Wisconsin points to certain other points in Illinois. This increase, the complainants contended, was a discrimination in favor of Illinois sand and gravel concerns with whom they are in competition for Chicago business.

The differential of one-half cent per 100 pounds was between the rates of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the rates of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroads. The differential was not in the actual increase in the rates as the extra rate amounted to 15 cents per yard of sand, not including competition. In regard to this point, the commission says:

"Slight increases recognizing the long standing relationship between the interstate and other points, warranted, but not any change in the differential. No material changes in the conditions surrounding the transportation of sand and gravel from the points to Chicago are shown that would justify a greater differential than the differential previously described."

"Upon all of the facts of record we find that respondents have not justified the increase in rates from the points to Chicago and that rates from points in the outer zone should not exceed the rate contemporaneously in effect from points in the inner zone more than one-fourth of one cent per 100 pounds. An order will be entered requiring the respondents to cancel the tariffs issued."

FILES AN APPEAL ON ORDINANCE DECISION

City Attorney Dougherty Takes Steps in Municipal Court to Take Case to Circuit Court.

This afternoon City Attorney W. H. Dougherty filed notice of appeal from the decision rendered yesterday by Judge George Grimm, to the circuit court of Rock county, to be retried before Judge George Grimm.

The appeal was taken on the theory that the city officials had the legal right to impose a license upon dogs whether they are running at large or not.

The appeal will take the case before the circuit court and will be tried in the October term of court, when Attorney Dougherty returns from his western trip. The case is a total of $100,000, running at large, and what power the city has in demanding license fees from dog owners. The date 617 has been changed from 617 to 618 over a week since a license has been issued. The total amount received in money for dog licenses this year is $1,000. No money will be refunded, it was announced this morning, until the question is decided in the higher courts.

Every ball fan will be at the Beloit Cardinal game at Beloit tomorrow.

POLICE ARREST FOUR NEGROES ON MADISON WARRANT FRIDAY

There were four Crows at the city hall police station, true to their name, who were arrested on a Madison warrant Friday. Two male negroes and two negroes were taken from the evening passenger train from Madison and were held here until the arrival of a Madison officer who took the two negroes to answer a Madison warrant charging larceny from the person.

The two women of the party gave their names as Ethel and Ellen Crow and denied being implicated in the theft of a watch from the Madison white men. Before daybreak this morning the Madison officer with the two victims of the theft, identified the two negroes and they were taken back to answer the charge. Their two male companions, who also gave the name of Crow, were released this morning and ordered to leave the city.

SECRETARY M'DOWELL HAD OFTEN TRAVELED ON EXCURSION BOAT

At One Time He Had Rushed for a Life-Belt When Steamer Listed Secretarily.

Secretary M'Dowell of the Commercial club was one of the many inquirers at the Gazette office for authentic news regarding the capsizing of the excursion steamer Eastland in the Chicago river this morning. He was anxious to learn the names of some of the victims, as he is well acquainted with many of the employees of the Western Electric company.

"I have often traveled on the Eastland," said Mr. M'Dowell this morning. "It is probable that the danger involved in the use of water ballast, which is used by the large lake excursion boats. On one occasion, Mr. M'Dowell had to make for the life preserver when the steamer listed precariously while unloading ballast in the shoals near the Michigan City harbor."

The depth of the Chicago river does not allow the taking on of water ballast and the sea-cocks are not opened until after the vessel reaches Lake Michigan. It is probable that the Eastland had very little, if any, ballast aboard and the crowds on the decks made the boat top heavy, causing the capsizing.

Inquires After Sister. W. J. Robshaw of Watertown, who was in this city today, made inquiries at the Gazette office in regard to the disaster, as he feared that his sister, Miss Ellen Robshaw, might have been upon the excursion boat. Miss Robshaw is employed as a stenographer at the Western Electric company's offices. Mr. Robshaw sought to locate his sister by telegraph at her rooming place in Chicago.

William Blodgett, president of the Merchants' and Savings bank of this city, at one time had, what he thinks was a narrow escape, on the ship Eastland, about seven years ago. Mr. Blodgett was on the ship, coming out of Benton Harbor, Michigan on Labor Day and the boat was crowded with excursionists. I should say three thousand people. We were about 100 feet from the shore when a small squall struck us and the boat of my family, thinking it was about to capsize. In my opinion the boat top-heavy. It is a long narrow craft, and carries no freight. It draws very little water, and I thoroughly made up my mind never to take a chance on her again."

William Weber, brother of Valentine of North Wisconsin, who has been in the employ of the Western Electric company for a number of years and is known to be one of the most prominent of the city employees, is thought to have been on the boat. No word has been received from him as yet, and all efforts possible are being made to get in connection with Chicago and learn of the missing by Mr. Weber of this city.

FOUR ARE SENTENCED IN MUNICIPAL COURT

"Black Belt Orator" Is Given Five Days For Vagrancy. Nearly Cause Race Riot in Cells.

George Martin, a negro, who was arrested for begging for food on South River street, was sentenced to serve five days under the commitment in the municipal court when he pleaded guilty to the charge of vagrancy. Last night there was a full house and when the police went to put a white prisoner in the same cell with Martin, there came near being a race riot, as there were three negroes and five whites in the cell.

Charles Christenson, who explained he was an accidental visitor in this city, being guilty to being drunk last night, was given 10 days in jail, not having the wherewithal to pay a three dollar fine.

Jack Freese, of Madison, was honest enough to admit that he had been drunk several times recently and was given six days or five dollars fine from the court.

Frank Johnson of this city plead guilty to being drunk and was given ten dollars or fifteen days.

COMPILED FIGURES ON NUMBER IN WAR

Estimates That Over Twenty-one Million Stand Opposed to Each Other in Gigantic Struggle.

Berlin July 24.—In justification of the superlative adjectives that are applied to the present war, William Michaelis has compiled figures in Over Land and Sea, showing just how big the war is.

He estimates that 21,770,000 men stand opposed to each other—12,820,000 on the side of the Allies and 8,950,000 for Germany, Austria and Turkey. On the naval side his estimates are as follows:

Line ships 113 53
Big cruisers 87 17
Small cruisers 128 56
Torpedo boats 704 358
Submarines 179 40
Minesweepers 231 139

"Number new boats unknown. The area of the countries ranged against Germany, exclusive of Italy, he finds to be 67,000,000 square kilometers, with an aggregate population of 800,000,000. Germany and her allies on the other hand have a territory of 6,000,000 square kilometers, and a population of 150,000,000 persons.

The daily cost of the war to the ten nations now taking part he places at 100,000,000 marks ($42,250,000), and the cost of the war to the first of April the total cost of the war was 40,000,000,000 marks ($10,000,000,000). Italy again excepted, he placed the amount of cost of such a war at $15,000,000,000.

It would take 60,000,000 of the huge 1,000 mark bank notes to pay this cost, and these notes, stacked up one on

THE GAZETTE'S MOTORIST PROBLEM DEPARTMENT

(Published Saturdays.)

Motoring Department.—Will you kindly let me know some way in which I can stop the connections in the gasoline pipes from leaking? No matter how tight these may be the gasoline seems to leak through.

The ground level joint in the connections must be buried, or otherwise impaired to permit such leaks. If not this, then the connections are not securely soldered on the ends of the pipe. The nuts at these joints should be tight. Very often in making these connections ordinary washing soap is used to prevent leaks. If the connections are properly fitted, however, neither of these substances should be used. Would suggest that you inspect the gas line thoroughly for any crack or slight opening at the points where the connections are made.

Motoring Department.—I am wondering why my differential makes such a noise when I go about fifteen miles per hour. It is under fifteen. It doesn't grind and it is not over fifteen miles. It goes about fifteen and eighteen. A racing repairman says it cannot be stopped. It is not a grinding noise. It is a rattling noise. It is not a grinding noise. It is a rattling noise. It is not a grinding noise. It is a rattling noise.

Driving wheels are adjusted right and left make a noise they must be badly worn. The noise perhaps may be lessened some by a heavier grease. Perhaps some of the grease is causing the noise. The defective bearing would cause the trouble. Would suggest that the differential unit be disassembled and a careful inspection made of all the parts.

Motoring Department.—Will you tell me if it is normal by fixed nozzle carburetor?

Some carburetors have a valve by which the mixture can be changed. The valve is located at the top of the spray nozzle. The valve is located at the top of the spray nozzle. The valve is located at the top of the spray nozzle. The valve is located at the top of the spray nozzle.

Motoring Department.—Some time ago I purchased a used car which is equipped with the cone type clutch. The car has been giving good service and in fact is running well now. The only trouble I am having is that when the clutch is disengaged there is a disagreeable squeak, which sounds like a dry bearing. When the clutch is engaged this noise is not noticeable. I have tried to locate the cause of this, but so far have failed. I am not very familiar with the construction and would like to have further advice. I do not think it is serious, but nevertheless would like to know what the cause is.

At the center of the clutch there is usually a bearing which fits over the end of the extended crank shaft. This bearing serves to support and control the clutch. When the clutch is engaged the crank shaft, flexed and clutch turn as a unit. When the clutch is disengaged the bearing on the shaft is called into action. A close inspection should reveal grease cup or plug which is disengaged and the bearing is lubricated. The bearing has undoubtedly become dry and is causing the squeak.

Motoring Department.—I have just purchased a used car and the brake hands do not hold very well. I examined them and found that the brake shoes and the drum are two and a half inches wide, but the brake lining on the hands is only one and a half inches wide. I think this is where the trouble is. I have found out that the same make of lining two and a half inches wide and I am thinking of buying some of the lining and the drum is in quite good condition. I don't want to go to the trouble and expense of having the drum resurfaced. Will it be anything by putting on the wide lining and about what proportion of extra wear? If it will not be much I will let the others wear out first. What is the cause of engine firing back sometimes in the car?

The brakes should always be kept in best condition. It is poor economy to save the cost of new brake lining and take a chance of an accident. Would suggest that you, without delay, install the proper size brake lining. The diameter of the brake drum as well as the width of the friction surface determine the efficiency. By using the proper size lining your brakes should give much better results.

There are a great many different things which may cause back-firing in the carburetor. A sticky intake valve is the most frequent cause. If the intake valves do not seat properly back-firing will result.

Motoring Department.—I have a 13 touring car (Ford), the motor of which has recently overhauled in one of the best local garages, and this "click" was not located. Apparently comes from the cam shaft, or some part of the valve mechanism, but no uneven spots were found on cam or tappets where these parts meet. The motor runs well at high or low speed. The clicking does not interfere with the timing of the engine in any way, simply making this annoying clicking sound. As all four cylinders "click," it does not seem to be faulty ignition. By retarding the spark lever the "click" disappears, but motor will overheat, and loses a good deal of its pulling power with every in this position. By retarding the spark lever the "click" disappears, but motor will overheat, and loses a good deal of its pulling power with every in this position.

Have the timing of the spark in each cylinder checked. It is important that the spark occur in each cylinder at exactly the same time. In the case of the piston, examine the advance and retard mechanism when the spark lever is advanced more than half way to see that no part is interfering with any moving part when in that position. It is hardly probable that the motor is "strained," as you suggest.

Motoring Department.—Kindly inform me what can be done to a cylinder that is pitted on the inside or cylinder bore. The wall appears to have been eaten through by the water in the oil.

If there is any way of repairing this would deem it a great favor if you would answer by return mail.—M. E.

The condition you refer to is very exceptional, and there is no way that would again make the surface of the cylinder satisfactory. The way you say the corroding effect extends through the cylinder wall it would be useless to re-grind the cylinder.

Motoring Department.—Several years ago I was asked to install new dry batteries in a Ford car. There were twelve cells in all connected in two sets of six each in series and arranged so that the two sets could be used alternately by throwing the switch on the cell box.

I had always been in the habit of thinking of the zinc pole of the battery as being positive, although I knew that this is not correct. The carbon being positive to the zinc, the zinc was connected to the new cells I joined the two end carbons of the sets together and grounded same to frame of chassis.

The result was that the batteries were exhausted in a couple of weeks, while before they had lasted the owner several months. A second time I installed new batteries, connected with the carbon grounded and with the same result.

The third time I joined the two end carbons of the two sets and grounded same, running the carbons to the switch, and the batteries lasted their normal life.

There did not seem to be any leakage due to insulation weakness, but there may have been, as I know that in testing cables, which should be used in testing batteries is grounded and which side is applied to the conductor.

may have been grateful for any information you may have on this subject, as I have often thought of it, and the real solution is a little hazy in my own mind yet.—W. J. S.

To get the maximum life from two cells they should be wired in multiple—that is, two groups of six each wired in series with the negative of one group wired in parallel, and the two end carbons (negative) wired in parallel. Either the positive or the negative could be grounded. Wiring in this way would allow of only one wire from battery to switch.

By wiring either the positive or the negative to the switch, the negative connection in which the current passed through the coil, in doing so, the amperage consumption is affected by the resistance of the vibrator points. When installing a set of dry cells care should be taken that none of the negative terminals come in contact with the metal of the battery box.

Motoring Department.—Kindly advise me how to remedy this trouble. I have a car with a Continental motor and Stromberg carburetor. I can get ten miles to the gallon of gasoline and after using her 13,000 miles I can only get six to seven miles to the gallon. The motor has good power and plenty of compression and the carburetor is adjusted right with a very lean mixture. The car is a 1912 model.

Thinking you in advance I saw if the gas valve is not adjusted right the day good as when the motor was new. The gasoline you are now using has probably a lower calorific value than formerly. If your motor has been overhauled at any time, have the timing of your ignition checked. By this time there is probably some "play" in the advance and retard mechanism, which will affect the period of the spark.

Motoring Department.—I am a reader of your paper and I would like to ask what is the best way to clean a motor. I lost its compression. It can all right the day before, and the next day I could turn it over very easily. The piston rings are all right.

Please advise me what is the matter. I have a four-cylinder, forty-horsepower engine. I am a reader of your paper and I would like to ask what is the best way to clean a motor. I lost its compression. It can all right the day before, and the next day I could turn it over very easily. The piston rings are all right.

Loss of compression may occur part the piston rings. Due to their being badly worn or sticking in their grooves or the slots working in line. At the inlet or exhaust valves, due to their not seating properly, which may be caused by their being pitted. Valve from bent or sticking in the guide, or insufficient clearance between the push rod and valve stem. At the valve caps, the spark plugs, or compression cocks. You better examine all of the above.

Italy's enemies, but much is censored which is not military news at all. The newspapers here are also confronted with the mystery of the fact that some foreign countries are allowed to have Italian news two or three times over than the Italians themselves get it.

UNITED STATES GATHERS WORLD'S DIAMOND SUPPLY.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)—London, July 24. (By Mail.)—The United States will have a corner on diamonds for years to come. Information at hand in the British foreign office today shows that America is practically the only country in the world buying diamonds and the American appetite for them is amazing. Hundreds of thousands of sparklers are being exported from Germany to America via Holland.

When war broke out a Berlin syndicate which bought the bulk of West African diamonds had in stock a million and a half carats. These have been cut at low rates by craftsmen in Belgium and disposed of almost wholly to the United States.

Less than a year ago the syndicate that controls the output of the De Beers and Jagersfontein African miners had a stock of four million carats. Since war was declared the mines have been idle but the syndicate has not let it has exported the greater part of its stock to the United States.

Practically all diamond mines in Africa have closed down, their engineering staffs have been disbanded and their native laborers discharged.

Experts agree that there will be a marked shortage of diamonds after the war except in America.

HOLD RIVER MARALLON IN MILWAUKEE TODAY.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)—Milwaukee, Wis., July 24.—Under the sanction of the A. U. a river marathon was held today. Fifty men starting from the bridge at Blatz park. This finish was at the dam. Interest was in how long the women's marathon which started at Folsom bridge. The Misses Esther and Helen Thomson, both expert swimmers, were the favorites in the race.

DECLINE IN NUMBER OF SMALL-POX CASES.

But Fifty-six Cases of Disease in State During June.—Typhoid Fever Season is Here.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)—Madison, Wis., July 24.—During June, 1915, only fifty-six cases of smallpox were reported to the state board of health by the various local health officers. This number represents the smallest number of cases of smallpox reported to this office in a period of eighteen months.

During June, 1914, 176 cases were reported. The decline is due to the department believes, to the co-operation of communities in preventing epidemics and in the willingness of more people to submit to vaccination.

"Our reports have been gradually on the increase for over two years," says a statement by the board today, "and thus cannot attribute this decrease to failure in reporting on the part of the various physicians and health officers. However, when we realize that the entire empire of Germany during a period of a year recorded only twenty-six cases of smallpox, we realize there is still room for much preventive work."

The total number of cases of typhoid fever during the quarter ending June 30 was ninety-nine, as against ninety-eight reported for the same period of last year. This is practically a normal rate for this period of the year, but unfortunately the July report shows a gradual increase. This means that the typhoid fever season is here and emphasizes the necessity of people getting busy and destroying all typhoid breeders.

Don't neglect to keep your premises clean and your houses are in excellent repair, and if there is any doubt about the purity of the water you drink, send it to the state laboratory for examination.

"Do your share in safeguarding your own community from this dread disease."

The other contagious diseases reported during the month of April, May and June are as follows: Diphtheria, 220; whooping cough, 478; measles, 717; tuberculosis, 494; meningitis, 21; anterior poliomyelitis, 3.

OPEN NEW STEEL PLANT IN AUSTRALIA HOING TO MAKE OWN GOODS.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)—Sydney, Australia, July 24.—An iron and steel works, representing an outlay of over $7,000,000 has just been opened at Port Waratah, near Newcastle, New South Wales, by means of which Australia hopes eventually to become independent of foreign countries in the matter of iron and steel.

The opening of the new plant was regarded as an eye-opening event in the industrial history of the country and was made a formal occasion at which speeches were made by a number of distinguished men. The works are located on the outlet of the collieries which are probably the biggest in the southern hemisphere.

All the machinery in the works is of American make and about 50 workmen from the United States are engaged, chiefly for training the Australian workmen in modern methods of steel making.

It looks like the beginning of the end for George Gibson, the Pirate catcher. Hack has been a wonderful backstop and Pittsburghers will all want to see him with pride, but then George is saying his fare well. He is not the Hack of old. He cannot get over the same ground after four balls, cannot hold onto the pellet and his throwing at times has been very bad. A younger man is going to take Gibson's place. Hack will go to the bench for reserve duty and coaching young pitchers. But Gibson will never be able to hold up as the iron man again. George holds the world's record for catching the most major league games in a season. The old man goes. He is great, but Father Time scores another victory. Pittsburgh will wait a long time to see another Gibson, such as Gibson was in his prime.

It is now up to some golf club to offer a safety deposit building as a prize so Jerry Travers can win it to keep his cups in.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Austin, Tex., July 24.—Six constitutional amendments are being voted on in Texas today. An election also is being held to fill vacancies in the Texas house of representatives.

One amendment would permit voters, who are away from home on election day, to vote in whatever county they happen to be. Their voting is limited to federal office holders and such state officials as are selected by all the voters of the state.

Another amendment would authorize counties to vote taxes for aiding worthy students in obtaining education in the state colleges.

The other amendments are: to permit larger bond issues for levee building and reclamation work; to permit higher taxation rates for maintaining improvements built through bond issues; to separate the University of Texas and the Agricultural and Mechanical College; and to correct a minor error in the irrigation bond issue laws.

ROMAN PRESS JOINS IN CHORUS OF PROTEST OVER CENSORSHIP EVILS.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Rome, July 24.—The Roman press has joined vigorously in the chorus of protest which is going up from every country in active war against the difficulties of the censorship. Aside from the fact that the papers are military men, and unable to judge matter from a newspaper viewpoint, embarrassment is caused because there are several distinct bodies of censors, some of whom allow certain news to pass while others suppress it.

An effect of the censorship on

Roman papers is that the Milan journals are finding great favor in the capital. The reason is, the Milan censor is very liberal, and the Roman censor severe, the consequence being that the Milan papers are often the first to bring news to Rome.

The latest and most notable example is that of the Pope's interview with the correspondent of the Paris Libération. The Corriere della Sera published it in full, while on Roman paper was even allowed to mention it, but when the Milan paper arrived in Rome, the censorship on the interview was finally lifted here.

The Roman papers do not object to the suppression of military news, which might even indirectly help

Italy's enemies, but much is censored which is not military news at all. The newspapers here are also confronted with the mystery of the fact that some foreign countries are allowed to have Italian news two or three times over than the Italians themselves get it.

UNITED STATES GATHERS WORLD'S DIAMOND SUPPLY.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)—London, July 24. (By Mail.)—The United States will have a corner on diamonds for years to come. Information at hand in the British foreign office today shows that America is practically the only country in the world buying diamonds and the American appetite for them is amazing. Hundreds of thousands of sparklers are being exported from Germany to America via Holland.

When war broke out a Berlin syndicate which bought the bulk of West African diamonds had in stock a million and a half carats. These have been cut at low rates by craftsmen in Belgium and disposed of almost wholly to the United States.

Less than a year ago the syndicate that controls the output of the De Beers and Jagersfontein African miners had a stock of four million carats. Since war was declared the mines have been idle but the syndicate has not let it has exported the greater part of its stock to the United States.

Practically all diamond mines in Africa have closed down, their engineering staffs have been disbanded and their native laborers discharged.

Experts agree that there will be a marked shortage of diamonds after the war except in America.

"I'll put the matter on my business!" stormed Jim Sargent, stalking up and down the library, with his fists clenched and his face purple. "I'll bankrupt them!" and he paused, as he passed, to reassuringly pat the shoulder of poor Aunt Grace, who sat perfectly numb holding one thumb until the bone ached.

"The press is the palladium of our national liberty, Uncle Jim," drawled the soothing voice of Ted.

"You can't do a thing about it," counseled Gerald Fosland, a stiff-looking gentleman who never made a mistake of speech, or manner, or attire.

"Shucks, Gail!" suddenly remembered Lucile. "The Big Faulkner reception is this week, and your gown was to be so stunning. Don't go home!"

Mrs. Helen Davies cast on her feather-brained daughter a glance of severe reproof.

"Have you no sense of propriety, Lucile?" she warned. "Gail, very naturally, cannot remain here under the circumstances. It does great credit to her that, immediately upon realizing this horrible occurrence, she telegraphed to her mother, without consulting any of us, that she was returning."

"I just wanted to go home," said Gail, her chin quivering and her pretty throat tremulous with breath pent from sobbing.

"It'll blow over, Gail," argued Uncle Jim, in deep distress because she was going so soon. If she had only stopped long enough to pack up, they might have persuaded her to stay. "Just forget it, and have a good time."

"Jim," ordered the stern voice of Aunt Helen, "will you be kind enough to see if anyone is out in front?"

"Certainly," agreed Jim, wondering why his wife's sister was suddenly so severe with him.

"It's time to start," called Ted with practiced wisdom allowing ten minutes for good-bys, parting instructions and forgotten messages.

The adepts were said. Aunt Grace, clasping Gail in her arms, began to sob, out of a full heart and a general need for the exercise. Gerald Fosland took the hand of his wife and kissed it in most gallant fashion.

"I shall miss you dreadfully, my dear," he stated.

"I shall be thinking of you," responded Arlene, adjusting her veil.

Mrs. Davies drew Arlene into the drawing room.

"It was so sweet of you to agree to accompany Gail," she observed. "It would be useless to attempt to influence her now, but I look to you to bring her back in a week. Her prospects are really too brilliant to be interrupted by an unfortunate episode of this nature."

One could readily see that no deviation from his routine confronted Gerald Fosland this morning. He had had his plunge and his breakfast, his mail and his paper laid before him, and yet there was something ghastly about the feel of the house. It was as if someone were dead! Gerald Fosland was as radical a deviation from his daily life as he ever had done. He left his mail unopened, after a glance at the postmark; he left his paper unread; he picked up his hat and gloves and stick, and started to leave the room. As he passed the door leading to Arly's apartments, he hesitated, and put his hand on the knob. He glanced over his shoulder, as a guilty conscience made him imagine that a servant was coming in, then he gently turned the knob, and entered. A tiny vestibule, and then a little French-gray salon, and then a foudoir, all in delicate blue, and sweet with a faint, delicate, evasive fragrance which was like the passing of Arly. Something made him stand, for a moment, with a trace of feeling which came to awe. He did not notice, until afterwards, that he had tripped.

He went on to the dainty blue bedroom, and looked earnestly about it, then he went back to the boudoir and seated himself on the stiff chair in which he had, on rare occasions, sat and chatted with her. He remained there perhaps half an hour. Suddenly he arose, and called for his limousine, and drove to Teasdale's. They were out, he was told. They were at Mr. Sargent's, and he drove straight there. Somehow, he was glad that, since they were out, they had gone to Sargent's. He was most anxious to see Lucile.

"Just in time to join the mourners, Gerald," greeted Ted. "We're doing a very solemn lot of Gailing."

"I'll join you with pleasure," agreed Gerald, feeling more at home and light of heart here than he had anywhere during the day. Lucile seemed particularly near to him. "Have you any intimation that Gail expects to return soon?"

"None at all," stated Aunt Helen, with a queer mixture of somberness and impatience. "She only writes about what a busy time they are having, and how delightfully eager her friends have been about her, and how popular Arly is, and such things as that."

"Arly is popular everywhere," stated Gerald, and Lucile looked at him wonderingly, turning her head very slowly towards him.

"What do you hear from Arly?" she inquired, holding up her hand as if to shield her eyes from the fire, and studying him curiously from that shadow.

"Much the same," he answered; "except that she mentions Gail's popularity instead of her own. She had her maid send her another trunkful of clothing, I believe, and he fell to gazing into the fireplace."

"I am very much disappointed in Arly," worried Aunt Helen. "I sent Arly specifically to bring Gail back in a week, and they have been gone nine days!"

"I'm glad they're having a good time," observed Jim Sargent. "She'll come back when she gets ready. The New York pull is something which hits you in the middle of the night, and makes you get up and pack."

"Yes, but the season will soon be over," worried Aunt Helen. "Gail's presence here at this time is so important that I do not see how she can neglect it. It may affect her entire future life. A second season is never so full of opportunities as the first one."

"Oh, nonsense," laughed Jim. "You're a fanatic on matchmaking, Helen. What you really mean is that Gail should make a choice out of the matrimonial market before it has all been picked over."

Lucile watched Gerald with intense interest. She could scarcely believe the startling idea which had popped into her head! Gerald's only apparent deviation from his normal attitude had consisted in abstractedly staring into the fire, instead of paying polite attention to everyone.

"You scare me," said Lucile, still watching Gerald. "I'm not going to leave Gail out there any longer. I'm going to have her back at once."

Gerald raised his head immediately, and smiled at her.

"Splendid," he approved. "Fact of the matter is, and he hesitated an instant, 'I'm becoming extremely homesick.'"

Even Ted detected something in Gerald's tone and in his face.

"It's time you were waking up," he bluntly commented. "I should think you would be lonely without Arly."

"Yes, isn't it time," agreed Gerald, studying the matter carefully. "You know, both having plenty of leisure, there's never been any occasion for us to travel separately before, and, really, I miss her dreadfully."

"I think I'll have to get her for you, Gerald," promised Lucile, removing her hand from in front of her eyes, and smiling at him reassuringly. She could smile beautifully just now. The incredible thing she had thought she detected was positively true, and it made her excitedly happy! Gerald Fosland had been in love with his wife, and had never known it until now!

"If you can work that miracle, and bring Gail back with her, you'll spread sunshine all over the place," declared Jim Sargent. "It's been like a funeral here since she went home. You'd think Gail was the most important section of New York. Everybody's blue—Allison, Doctor Boyd, everybody who knew her inquires, with long faces, when she's coming back!"

"What do you propose?" inquired Mrs. Helen Davies, with a degree of interest which intimated that she was quite ready to take any part in the conspiracy.

"I have my little plan," laughed Lucile. "I'm going to send her an absolutely irresistible reminder of New York!"

CHAPTER XIV.

The Message From New York.
It was good to be home! Gail wondered that she could ever have been content away from the loving shelter of her many, many friends. She had grown world weary in all the false gaiety of New York! She was disillusioned! She was blue. She was tired of frivolity; and she immediately planned or enthusiastically agreed to take part in a series of gayeties which would have made an average hard-working man anticipate them with an already broken constitution.

The house was full of them, morning, noon and night; young girls, so date and jolly, and all of them excitedly glad that Gail was among them again; and young men, in all the degrees from social butterflies to plodding business pluggers, equally glad.

Good, comfortable home folks these, who were deliciously nice to the stately, black-haired Arly, and voted her a tremendous beauty, and stood slightly in awe of her. The half cynical Arly, viewing them critically, found in them one note of interesting novelty—a certain general clean-hearted wholesomeness, and, being a seeker after the unusual, and vastly appreciative, she deliberately cultivated them; flattering the boys, but not so much as to make the other girls hate her. To the girls she made herself even more attractive, because she liked them better. She complimented them individually on the point of perfection for which each girl most prized herself; she told them that they were infinitely more clever than the women of New York, and better looking, in general; for the New York women were mostly clothes and makeup; and, above all, she envied them their truer lives!

No group of young people could resist such careful work as that, especially when performed by a young woman so adroit and so attractive, and so well groomed; so they lost their awkwardness with her, which removed any sense of discomfort Gail might have felt, which was the aim to be accomplished. In those first few days Gail was the happiest of all creatures, in spite of the fact that the local papers had carried a polite echo of that despicable slave story. At night, however, beginning with the second one, when the girls had retired to the mutual runway of their adjoining suites, the conversation would turn something like this:

"Let's see, this is the seventeenth, isn't it?" thus Arly.

"Yes, Tuesday," concentratedly selecting a chocolate, the box of which bore a New York name.

"Mrs. Matson's ice skating ball is tonight." A sidelong glance at the busy Gail. "She always has such original affairs."

"Doesn't she?" Gail draws her sandaled feet up under her and stretches down her pink negligee, so that she looks like a stiff statue in tinted ivory.

"And such interesting people. That new artist is certain to be there. What's his name? Oh, yes, Vladow. I could adore him."

"You're a mere verbal adorer," laughs Gail, studying anxiously over the problem of whether she wants another piece of chocolate or not. Allison had sent such good ones. "Vladow eats garlic."

"That's why I adore him, from a distance. Of course all the nice regular fellows will be there—Dick, Rodley and Ted, and Houston, and—Oh, oh! I forgot to write Gerald," and with a swift passing kiss somewhere between Gail's ear and her chin, she hurries into her own dressing room, with a backward glance to make sure that Gail is staring, with softened brown eyes, down into her chocolate-box, and seeing there amid the confections, the laughing, swirling skaters in Mrs. Matson's glistening ballroom. There were some who would not be at that ball—Allison, and Rev. Smith Boyd, and—Arlene has plenty of time to write her formally dutiful letter without disturbance.

Gail has letters, too, as the days wear on. She scarcely has time for them amid all the impromptu gayeties, but she does find a chance to read them; some of them twice. If she'd only come back. That was the tenor of all her letters; if she'd only come back! Bless their hearts, she loved them; and yes, she longed for them, even here in the happy, sheltering environment of her own dear home and friends! There were still other letters; a confidently friendly one from Allison, who sent her regularly candy and flowers on alternate days; a substantial one from Houston Van Plooin; a thoughtful one from Willis Cunningham; a florid one from Dick Rodley; nice little notes, calculated to relieve her embarrassment, from all her "slaves" except the missing count, and a discussion from the Rev. Smith Boyd. That was one of those which she read more than once; for it was quite worth it.

There was an impromptu party at Gail's house, a jolly affair, indeed. All her old steadfast friends, you know, who were quite sufficient to fill her life; and this was the night of the gay little Mrs. Babbitt's affair in New York. How much better than those great, glittering social pageants was a simple, wholesome little ball like this with all her dear girl chums, in their pretty little Paris model frocks, and all the boys, in their shiny white fronts. No one had changed, and she quite felt, except for the presence of Arly, that she had fallen back into her old familiar life. Why, it seemed as if she had been home for ages and ages!

At the end of the Sargent ballroom, where Gail's sedate but hospitable mother always sat until the "Home, Sweet Home" dance was ended, were the same dear, familiar palms, which Marty, the florist, always sent to everybody's house to augment the home collection. The gorgeous big one had a leaf gone, but it was sprouting two others.

Tremendously gay affair. Everybody was delighted, and said so; and they laughed and danced and strolled and ate loes, and said jolly nothings, and knew, justifiably, that they were nice and clever and happy young people; and Arly Fosland, with any number of young men wondering how old her husband was, danced conscientiously, and smiled immediately when anyone looked at her. Gail also was dancing conscientiously, and having a perfectly happy evening. At about this hour there would be something near four hundred people in the ballroom and the drawing rooms and the conservatory of Mrs. Babbitt's.

She was whirling near the balcony windows with a tall young friend who breathed, when there was an exclamation from a group of girls at the window. Vivian Jennings turned. She was a girl with the sort of eyes which, in one sweep, can find the only four-leaved clover in a 40-foot field.

"Gail!" she cried, almost dancing. "Gail! Do come and see it!"

Gail did not desert her partner; she merely started over to the window with one hand trailing behind her as an indication to follow, and immediately, without looking around, she called:

"Arly! Where's Arly?"

Dinner Stories

At a revival meeting held in Navarre, on the Mississippi river, one summer, old Captain Higgins strayed into the camp grounds, and before he knew it found himself pretty well forward among the "mourners." The captain, who has been river pilot for weak eyes, and in consequence has frequent recourse to a big red handkerchief. One of the active brethren of the meeting, noticed his apparent interest in the proceedings, and thought he had hooked a convert. So he approached the old weather-beaten pilot, shook him warmly by the hand and said:

"Well, Brother Higgins, how do you feel?"

"Tough; how do you pull through in this damned hot weather?"

The teacher of a night school in Chicago was endeavoring to instill in the minds of some of the discouraged pupils some notions of ambition. "Do you know," he asked of a seedy looking boy of twenty, "do you know that every lad in this country has a chance to be president?"

"Is that so?" asked the seedy one, reflectively. Then he added:

"Say, I'll sell my chance for ten cents."

The doctor told her that what she needed was a good hearty meal at night and then to stop thinking about her stomach.

"But, doctor only two months ago you told me to avoid dinner at night, and to take a light supper instead."

"Oh, did I?" replied her medical advisor, reflectively. "Well, that shows what marvelous strides medical science is making."

Prefers to Sleep Some Other Way.

"Take this medicine according to the directions," said the physician, "and you will sleep like a baby." "You will have to excuse me, doctor," modestly replied Miss Portymouth. "My married sister's baby sleeps with its big toe in its mouth."
